SEEKING POISON IN GIRL DEATH MYSTERY

Autopsy Is Performed on Body of Grace Bates, Sixteen-Year-Old Maine Girl, Three Weeks After Her Mysterious Death

BOULTON, Me., April 6—The mystery here today awaits the investigation into the details of the death of Grace Bates, the sixteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Manser Bates, whose body was buried three weeks ago. It has just been suddenly exhumed for an analysis of the contents of the stomach. Rumors have arisen of a possible poisoning.

Coroner W. F. Ellett of Houlton, with Drs. Mann and Dillings, performed an autopsy when they say was obtained the organs were then sent to Bowdoin College at Brunswick, where there are better facilities for an expert analysis.

When the girl died three weeks ago, no inquest was held.

It was stated at that time that the girl had died as a result of using drugs to cure herself.

Mrs. Manzer displayed great bitterness toward her daughter the day of the girl's death. When neighbors, friends of the girl, stopped and asked to see Grace, Mrs. Bates is alleged to have said:

Buried Hastily.

"No, you can't see her."

"Why not?" asked the visitor.

"She isn't here," was the answer.

"Where's she at?" demanded the friends of the girl, who had seen her but the day before.

Mrs. Manzer at first refused to answer. Finally, it is stated, she declared:

"She's gone to a better place than this world."

A few hours later it was announced that the girl was dead. A brief burial followed swiftly.

The people of Aroostook County were aroused at the facts in the case.

The girl was a favorite and every person in the Smyrna Mills district, where she lived, knew and liked her. Her death started many to probing and when stories of the peculiar circumstances connected with the funeral on the day of the girl's funeral were related, public sentiment made itself felt in a storm of protest.

The result was exhumation of the body, and the analysis in an effort to discover whether or not poison had caused the death.

The parents of girl are about fifty years old. She was the youngest in the family.

Parents Questioned.

The parents were then questioned as to the cause of their death, according to the Houlton police. Grace Bates was taken all of three days. It was stated that she had used cedar.

Smyrna Mills, is the girl lived, is fifteen miles west Houlton. There is a postoffice and a store two, with a few houses about the mills. The village lies in the heart of the Aroostook County woodland, and neighbors except in the settlements, are few and scattered.

The mystery of the girl's death, hearing as it does, a huge resemblance to the death of Avis Bell, for which Clarence Hickeson is the sentence of death in Boston, has stirred the whole county and all the state.

With the news of the girl's body had been exhumed, flocked to Houlton, and crowds sold at every store to wait for news of the autopsy.

British Strike Off; 1,000,000 Miners to Go Back to Work

Federated Officials in Conference Vote to Accept Conditions, Rejoicing at News.

LONDON, April 6—The great British coal strike, which made one million men idle throughout the coal fields in the United Kingdom was called off today.

In National conference, the officials of the Federated Miners Union accepted the executive committee's recommendation that work be resumed forthwith and it was decided to send notices to the men in the various fields to go back at once.

Resumption of work will be general on Monday, the union leaders declare, and they say that by the middle of the week all the collieries will again be on time with their 1,000,000 employees.

There was strong opposition in the conference to a resolution providing for a recommendation for the men to return to work, but the leaders who favored peace finally won the day.

News that the conference had decided in favor of general resumption of work was flashed throughout the United Kingdom and caused the greatest rejoicing everywhere.

The only place where the officials of the union fear trouble now is in the Northern England fields, where the vote in the referendum ballot on the minimum wage bill was strongest in favor of a continuation of the strike.

Wear Your Easter Bonnets Early and Then Watch for Rain

Showers Are Expected from the West, But the Morning Promises to be Fair.

Now here is the official and last call on tomorrow's weather—Ladies, you can wear your new hats in the morning. But, hurry home, for it will rain in the afternoon.

Tonight will be fair but not so in the central part of the continent. From Canada to the gulf, there are scattered showers and snow flurries. It is snowing in Winnipeg and in Bismarck, and the disturbance is moving East. That means that we are going to have showers tomorrow; but unless the moisture moves faster than it is going at present, it will be a fine Easter Sunday morning we will be having.

John G. Rote Held In Bail of $5000

Former Razor Company Treasurer, Accused of Theft, at Once Supplies Cash.

John G. Rote, former treasurer of the Gillette Safety Razor Company at South Boston, was arraigned on a secret indictment before Judge Sanderson in the Suffolk Superior Court, charged with the larceny of $7000 worth of blue prints and plans of the company.

The $7,000 valuation only covers the cost of labor in making the prints and plans which are said to hold the secret of making the intricate parts of the razor.

Rote resigned his position last November. The company says Rote refused repeatedly to give them up.

When Rote, who lives in Cambridge, was held in $5,000 cash bail, which he furnished from a roll of bills that he had in his pocket. He peeled off five of them, each of a $1,000 denomination.

Harvard Is Eager to See Diamond Heels

Harvard collegians are eagerly waiting to see if Mrs. Charles H. Anthony of Montclair, N. J., the woman with the heels of her slippers studded with diamonds, will wear her diamond footgear in Cambridge. Mrs. Anthony is coming to Harvard next week to visit her son, Harvey Mitchell Anthony, a special student.

She has startled New York and Washington society by her six pairs of slippers with gemmed heels, valued at $1,200 the pair. She started Washington the move because she arrived there first on her eastward travels from Indiana. New York had heard about her in advance.

Now that Mrs. Anthony is really coming to Cambridge the Harvard boys hope she will wear one of her six pairs of diamond-heeled slippers at least once out in the daylight in the college yard.

The real story of Mrs. Anthony's diamond heels will be printed in tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN.

WOMAN TELLS HOW SHE TIED UP A CITY

It's a Poor Opinion Mrs. Quinn Has of Men, Especially in Office, so She's Glad She Stopped Portsmouth Municipal Wheels

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., April 6.—The beautiful little city by the sea, noted for its navy yard, its history, its politicians' terrories and other interesting things, has been tied up for hours by a woman—Mrs. Ellen Quinn, today the most talked about woman in New England.

I talked with Mrs. Quinn in the home in Portsmouth. I had expected to find a large, imposing woman, loaded with politics, cudgels and other implements of office credited to the militant suffragette, but I found sitting in the midst of her home a small, bright-faced little woman, dressed in a blue wrapper and watching with keen enjoyment the antics of two youngsters as they wallowed in the black mud in front of her home.

What Mrs. Quinn Did.

But perhaps you haven't heard of Mrs. Quinn before. Well, she's the woman who practically tied up the machinery of the Portsmouth city government by having attachments put on the City Hall and the movable property of city departments to cover a $5000 damage claim. Under instructions of her counsel, Tom Sheffield, she had the police, acting under attached horses and wagons of the street watering and ash and garbage collecting departments and even tied up the police patrol wagons so that no arrests could be made.

So there were lively times in Portsmouth for a while and everybody was asking everybody else what it was all about and who this commercial woman, Mrs. Quinn, could be. This is what she said about it:

"The men in office have been going their own happy gait so long that when something comes up to make them open their eyes the right they get just about staggers them. They'll have to sit up now and take notice for a while, and I guess they won't care much about doing anything so strenuous."

Then she remembered her lawyer had forbidden her to talk, so she proceeded to—well, we'll say only some more.

She's for Woman's Rights.

"Do I believe in woman's rights? I should say I do and here's one woman who is going to get some of the ties up a dozen cities. If there were more women in office the men would be compelled to be more honest in order to hold their jobs. As it is, there's hardly one honest man in a hundred among office-holders."

"Did you realize that you were going to tie up a whole city when you instituted your suit?" I asked.

"No, I didn't care what they did so long as justice was done. That's all most of us want in this world, I believe. But with a lot of manoeuvring men in all the offices it's a pretty hard thing for a woman to get any justice at all and so for her having real rights she hardly knows think of such a thing.

"All women are coming to these states these days, and they're not going along with the men as they did in the past. They won't even marry them, and that shows where they're wise. Many can get along without them. Why bother with them? I think every girl that does marry wishes herself back sooner or later. And what they ever try it for is more than I can see.

She's a Suffragette.

"Yes, I suppose I am a suffragette. But if a woman is married I believe she should stay in the home rather than get out into politics. There's enough in the average home to keep the women busy, and she can guide things from there. But she should demand her rights before she is married, and have an understanding as to just how things are going to be run. And she should take a high hand in running them.

"Most divorces are caused by men assuming too much authority. Then they go around and see some other face that attracts them, and they haven't any more stability of character than to be led away by it.

"If there were women running this city instead of men, we wouldn't have to fight for our rights. They'd be handed over to us. Women are just, but there are mighty few men who have that requisite. They're grafters, the whole lot of them."

She forgot, however, in berating the men, that she had befriended some of them by tying up the patrol wagon, but I didn't dare mention that. She went right along.

"After a woman is married she shouldn't be expected to work, either, as so many of them do these days. She should run the home without being compelled to be the breadwinner. It's not only just for the women who do this, but worse for the men. Pretty soon they won't want to do anything but smile occasionally, and the women will have to jump through hoops to make them do that.

"Lots of women marry in order to be supported, and then have to turn around and do the supporting. I believe if signed across them right. It's like the man who said that when he married his wife she didn't have a rag to her back, and now she was all rags."

Esther Mercy Wins Her Slander Suit

$2,500 Award for That $250 Hat Story

MISS ESTHER MERCY WEARING $250 HAT THAT STARTED FAMOUS CHICAGO CASE

Girl Expelled from College Victorious in Fight Against Woman Official.

CHICAGO, April 6.—Miss Esther Mercy has won her slander suit against Dean Marion Talbot of Chicago University. The jury that heard the case today returned a verdict for the girl. She was given $2,500 of the $100,000 damages she demanded.

A $250 hat which Miss Mercy admitted was given to her by Warren E. Reynolds, a married man, was at the bottom of the trouble. Reynolds is getting a divorce, the girl explained, and she insisted they would be married as soon as the suit was finished.

How Trouble Began.

The beginning of the row was explained by Miss Mercy thus:

"On cigarettes were stolen from the hat when I boarded with the sister of the wife of a professor, to whom I had been recommended. When I complained of the theft of the cigarettes I was summoned to the university, and Miss Talbot, the dean, said I had done wrong in accepting a hat from a man.

"They asked me where I got my expensive clothing. I answered them that the clothing was bought by my uncle, who was paying my university expenses. Dean Talbot told me I was unfit to remain at the university. I ought to get married, the dean told me."

Throughout the trial the young woman was intensely dramatic. Once when C. E. Zimmerman was on the stand, she sprang before him, and cried, pointing:

"I never saw that man before."

When the first question of Dean Talbot's attorney indicated the witness was to be used in an attack on Miss Mercy's veracity, she faced Zimmerman again and cried:

"Look at me. Look me in the eye. You had better be right before you go on. Remember, it's a question of a woman's name. Now go on. I defy you."

Asserted Girl Fibbed.

Miss Talbot, as a witness, testified:

"I discovered she had told me many falsehoods. She wore a $100 coat with the $250 hat. I told her that the university was no place for that sort of extravagance. This was especially true when a score of persons jounted the halls trying to collect bills from Miss Mercy. She replied that it was none of the business of the university, as her mother and brother knew that she had received the hat.

"In the presence of Dean Vincent I charged her with falsehoods and she replied. Of course I have lied to you. She then left Dean Vincent and said:

"The day of retribution will come to you."

Frances Walker, counsel for the dean, said:

"We have been scandalized by this woman, and I am seeking to save the time of this court and the city. I am trying to stop the advertising which this woman is getting for the vaudeville stage."

In summing up he said: "She has fibbed throughout this trial with the jury, has made a monkey out of me and a spectacle of the court."

Fined $30 for Using Child Actor on Stage

Little Doris Maguire, Fourteen-Year-Old Boston Child, Had Appeared in Lynn Theatre.

Lindsay Morison, the actor and lessee of the Auditorium Theatre in Lynn, was fined $30 by Judge Lincoln in the Lynn Police Court today for violating a statute in allowing a child under fourteen to be employed in a theatre after 7 o'clock at night.

The child so employed was Grace Maguire, daughter of Doris Maguire, of No. 29 Somerset street, Boston. She appeared in a child's part three weeks ago.

The complaint was made by State of ficer Richard Ryder.

Mr. Morison pleaded guilty. He said the child was employed by one of his staff, without his knowledge. He said he has been interested for years in the theatrical profession and he had never before been charged with violation of the law.

NEW SMALLPOX CASES IN SALEM

Eight more cases of smallpox have been reported in Salem, bringing the total number to twenty-eight.

The cases are of the mildest form, according to the physicians. Ten more reports were reported to Dr. Noyes, the city physician.

It is thought that it will not be necessary to close the parochial schools or the French church in the "point" district, the health officials deemed this inadvisable, as the people would immediately go to other churches. All the theatres and moving picture houses in the city have been ordered closed until Monday.

On the arrival of 3,000 vaccine points a wholesale vaccination was begun among the residents in the territory lying east of Lafayette street and south of Harbor street.

CHASE SAYS HE IS TO WED ELSIE JANIS

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 6.—Announcement has been made here by H. Y. Chase of Chicago, who is here as a member of the Town Development Company, boosting the membership of the Uniontown Chamber of Commerce, that within a few months he will be married to Miss Elsie Janis, the actress. Mr. Chase came here with W. L. Finch of Chicago, his partner, a few days ago in an attempt to reorganize the local chamber of commerce on a commission basis. He said that he and the actress after their marriage will live on a Florida plantation.

Spring Has Come! See the Open Cars

Cambridge, Still Proud of Subway, Leads the Way; But There's a Reason.

A real sign of Spring—the open-face trolley.

The Elevated put out open cars today, not many, to be sure, but what were open were just as open as they make 'em.

Cambridge drew the first one of the season, so far as known. Cambridge just had a new subway and can't speak of it yet without swelling up. Now it is first in the open-car game. (See footnote.)

It was on Western avenue, this open Cambridge trolley, outward-bound for Brighton and Soseky filled with passengers. Pedestrians gazed with interest.

An open car was also detected moving eastward in Federal street in the city at 10:45.

INDICT WOMAN IN HACKETT MURDER

Seven-Year-Old Murder Mystery at Last Causes Action by Grand Jury. Mrs. Reynolds Long in the Case.

AUGUSTA, Me., April 6.—Mrs. Etta Raymond was indicted at 1:20 o'clock this afternoon for the murder of Mattie Hackett on August 17, 1905.

Mrs. Raymond was in court when the Grand Jury reported and was arrested by Sheriff Charles M. Richardson. She was very cool and calm. She and her husband had been expecting an indictment.

"I am innocent of this terrible charge," Mrs. Raymond has repeatedly asserted. Today her husband declared that now his wife has been indicted the whole case will be settled once and for all, and his wife proved innocent.

Girl Was Strangled.

Mattie Hackett was eighteen years old and lived with her parents on a farm at Kent's Hill, about three miles from Readfield, Me., on the evening of August 17, 1905, shortly after dusk, she was called from the house and a cord was thrown about her neck. She was strangled to death.

B. F. Keith Buys Out Percy G. Williams

NEW YORK, April 6.—According to reliable information Percy G. Williams has disposed of his vaudeville interests in Manhattan and Brooklyn. While the name of his purchaser has not been disclosed, it is believed that B. F. Keith is the buyer and the figure said was close to $3,000,000.

The deal is said to embrace the Colonial and Alhambra theatres in Manhattan and the Orpheum, Greenpoint, Bushwick and Crescent Theatres in Brooklyn. The transaction is supposed to have taken place several days ago. It did not come to light until it was learned that Mr. Williams had made a present of $50,000 to John J. Moloney, his general manager. Mr. Williams is expected to leave the city for a pleasure trip on May 15 and on this day it is expected Mr. Keith will take over the theatres.

LOWELL STRIKERS INCREASE DEMAND

LOWELL, April 6.—The Textile Council met today and asked for an increase of 10 per cent., representing 600 members of the union. The request is said to be based on the schedule in some provinces to the closing of the mills on March 26. Manufacturers of the cotton goods proposed to the skilled help in the mills, such as weavers, loom-fixers and spinners.

The Textile Council unions are composed of the skilled operatives of the mills and is affiliated with the A. F. of L.

The mule spinners, loom fixers and weavers started to draw back-pay benefits this morning.

At a meeting of the I. W. W. this morning, the matter of substituting relief work was discussed. Strike committee men was instructed to establish these stations where necessary on Monday. Assurance was given the strikers that there would be no lack of food. A public oven will be set up and bread will be baked and the strikers supplying the flour and fuel.

Organizer William E. Trautmann in a speech accused John Golden of being the man who is responsible for the lack of food and making the strikers to go back to work on Monday and that the matter of relief would be looked after satisfactorily. He said that Golden had been in secret conference with the Mayor.

TO TEST WIRELESS IN SUN'S ECLIPSE

NEW YORK, April 6.—A series of notable experiments in wireless telegraphy are to be tried in Paris, April 28, during an eclipse of the sun which will completely envelop a part of the state here. It has been noticed by astronomers that the distance over which wireless messages can be dispatched varies greatly according to the time of day and the direction. A message sent by rapid vibrations will not carry more than two miles during the day, can be sent to distances three times that distance and especially toward the South. When shorter vibrations are used, it can be transmitted further during the day.

ASK MAINE COUNCIL TO OUST RICHARDSON

AUGUSTA, April 6.—The executive council today received an address from the Legislature asking for the removal of Asa A. Richardson, Democratic Sheriff of York County. After the Governor had read the address he reported that he would not remove Richardson until he had found a successor. Just before the Senate adjourned Senator Milliken of Aroostook County presented an order asking for a committee to appointed to investigate the administration of Kennebeck County officials. He alleged inconsistency and corruption. The order was passed over by the Senate on a party vote.

GEORGIAN PRINCE FINALLY FLOATED

BRISTOL, R. I., April 6.—The British oil tank steamer Georgian Prince, which went ashore on the eastern end of Hog Island Thursday evening, was floated at high tide early today by several tugs. At dawn the vessel was uncovered off the western entrance to Bristol harbor, and another large steamer was standing by. Shore observers were of the opinion that the oil was being transferred from the Georgian Prince to the other steamer. The Georgian Prince was thought to be leaking

BLOW UP BRIDGE NEAR EL PASO

EL PASO, Tex., April 6.—The city is in a state of terror today following the dynamiting of the Mexican Northwestern Railway bridge over the Rio Grande River by, it is believed, Mexican government agents from El Paso. A company of the Twenty-second Infantry is guarding the wrecked structure on the Texas end and a detail of Mexican soldiers on the Juarez end.

The citizens fear the dynamitings will be carried within the city itself. Many are preparing to leave.

Two explosions occurred, one in the center of the bridge and the second near by fifteen minutes later.

Railroad communication between the United States and Mexico is cut off, as the Northern Mexico line was blown up by the rebels.

The dynamiting weakened the structure so that it is impossible to run trains over it. United States soldiers from Fort Bliss, who examined it, found

It has been demonstrated that the profits of this company have averaged about seven per cent., and that this company has never called up its patrons to provide money for its stockholders. And it has been shown that in cases where above seven per cent. profits have been returned to the customers in the way of a reduction in rates. Consequently a record in this respect that is unparalleled in the United States.

Father Fights to Regain Little Girl

Case Already Heard in Three States

Raymond Hudson Aided by New Wife in Contest for Daughter Lucy.

LUCY HUDSON, AT NINE YEARS OLD AND AS A BABY

Nine-year-old Lucy Hudson of South Boston and Dorchester, who has been in three States and before three Massachusetts courts in a dispute over her custody, will come before the Massachusetts Superior Court next week for a hearing on her father's petition to have charge of her.

The father, Raymond J. J. Hudson of No. 11 Dexter street, South Boston, seeks to regain the girl from the custody of his aunt, Mrs. Annie Norton of No. 12 Tuttle street, Dorchester. He divorced his first wife five years ago in Vermont. He brought Lucy to Dorchester and put her in care of Mrs. Norton, who was appointed Lucy's guardian last September. Mr. Hudson has married again and now feels that he can give Lucy a home and parental care and training. The second Mrs. Hudson is anxious to assist her husband in getting the child. She and Mr. and Mr. Hudson is nearly heartbroken at not being able to get his little girl back yet. He is all wrapped up in her. We have tried and tried to get Lucy with us. We have a good home for her. If she is allowed to come to us I shall be as good a mother to her as I possibly can. I am ready to do everything for both for Mr. Hudson's sake and that of the little girl. Mr. Hudson was only waiting till he had a good home for her. Now that he has that I can take care of Lucy, he feels that he could have her with him again."

Mrs. Norton's appointment as temporary guardian of Lucy was made by Judge George last September. Thereupon Mr. Hudson took Lucy to Vermont. When he returned to Massachusetts Judge George held that he was in contempt. Edward P. Barry and Daniel Harris, Hudson's counsel, maintained that the Probate Court had no right to create a temporary guardianship over the child because no property was involved.

Mr. Hudson petitioned to have Mrs. Norton removed as guardian, and himself appointed. Judge George found he lacked jurisdiction in the case. The lawyers went to Judge Keney of the Superior Court, who asked them to get an opinion from the Supreme Judge Sheldon.

Judge Sheldon ruled that the Superior Court could hear the case. So they went back to Judge Keney, who ordered a hearing for next week.

Meanwhile Lucy is to stay with Mrs. Norton and is not to be taken out of the State. All principals and counsel in the case must be notified of the hearing. Lucy's mother, the first Mrs. Hudson, may attend, which would mean that the first and second Mrs. Hudson would come face to face.

TWO HELD IN MURDER CASES

Two men charged with murder in the first degree were arraigned in the Superior Court today.

Rocco Salamone was accused of killing Guiseppe Napolitano on February 8 of this year on Hanover street. Salamone pleaded not guilty and was held without bail.

Luigi Prisco was held on the charge of killing George Andrews, a special officer at an amusement place on Hanover street on Washington's Birthday. Prisco was put on, returned and killed Andrews it is alleged. When arraigned he also pleaded not guilty and the court to appoint someone. Judge Sanderson took the question under advisement. Prisco was held without bail. He pleaded not guilty.

Adopt Friend While Still on Honeymoon

Wed Last Fall, Kennedys of Worcester Make Traveling Companion Their Legal Son.

WORCESTER, April 6.—On their honeymoon in Egypt, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Scott G. Kennedy have adopted Mr. Kennedy's lifelong friend, Charles A. Williams, according to word received by their acquaintances here. No reason is known for the adoption.

Kennedy and Williams were prominent in Worcester for years, previous their departure for Europe. They purchased a villa in Sicily and have spent much of their time there, making occasional visits to this country. Kennedy was a benedict to a large extent on the suits of the Misses Burnside some time ago.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—A woman 114 years old, who, it is claimed, bore twenty-two children, and gave sixteen sons to the Union cause in the Civil War, is an applicant for an increase in her pension from $12 to $100 a month.

She is Mrs. Sarah Sweeney of Jacobsburg, O. A special bill in her behalf is under consideration by the House Committee.

TWO ARRESTED FOR MARINE STABBING

William O'Brien of Watertown, a private in the U. S. Marine Guards, was murderously assaulted and stabbed on the Portsmouth Kittery bridge at Portsmouth, N. H., early today for this deed, according to dispatches from Portsmouth. He is at the Portsmouth Naval Hospital and will probably recover. O'Brien is a member of the marine guard of the prison ship Southary. He was walking to the Navy Yard from Portsmouth and was attacked and stabbed in the body and head by two men in uniform. Later two other marines, Brown and Hillsborough, were arrested on entering the barracks.

Taft Men Lay Case Before Pictorial Hen

Fear Biddy That Portrayed Roosevelt on Egg Is of Hard-Shelled Progressive Tendencies.

HARTFORD, Ct., April 6.—Taft men here are indignant at the Leghorn one entered in the international egg laying contest at Storrs, Ct., by Charles Marshall of Columbia for laying an egg bearing a picture of Colonel Roosevelt on the shell.

They are debating whether it would be punishable under the election laws if they should make it worth while for Marshall to induce the hen to lay an egg adorned with the portrait of the President.

Mr. Marshall asserts that he cannot understand where his thirty gets her peculiar markings. He says the hen is grace able and handsome and has never before displayed an interest in politics.

Having drawn the egg into the ring, the hen today rested on her laurels. But when she next cackles the politicians are expected to rush here to see what pictorial result is achieved.

THE OLD ROMANIC BACK IN BOSTON

The Allan line steamship Scandinavian, formerly well known in Boston as the Italian of the White Star line, arrived here today. Four days overdue. The delay is ascribed to the coal taken on at Glasgow. The Scandinavian had barely enough to reach Halifax. The only visible change in the big ship since its sale a year ago to the Allan Line is that the stacks are now red, white and black, instead of buff and black.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; LATEST FINANCIAL NEWS

Coppers Advancing in Active Trading; Steel Is Higher

By W. H. ROSS.

STATE STREET, April 6.—Stock markets opened strong after being closed in observance of Good Friday, and with the exception of Utah Consolidated, which slumped at the start, there was strength to copper shares on the Boston "change, with leading strike through on the 1st.

At the start Old Colony, Santa Fe, Greenbay, Calumet & Arizona, and North Butte all advanced.

On small sales within the first few minutes, Utah Consolidated sold from 18¼ down to 13¾. After this break it rose to 14⅝. By that time Mayflower and Lake were up a fraction and Wyandotte a whole point.

In New York, Canadian Pacific attained the greatest gain. Steel and the copper were firm. The market was strong and active there.

Canadian Pacific Still Coming.

The New York market opened strong after the holiday and once again did Canadian Pacific figure in the start as the stock which could soar highest. As there is no London market today, the ascension could not be attributed to buying in the British capital. Probably caused orders lodged some time, however. Canadian Pacific opened at 243, or 1¼ above Thursday's close, and continued to advance. Steel common was in excellent demand and priced at 57⅞, within the first fifteen minutes. Vigorous buying was also noted in a number of other active securities. Kansas & Texas preferred advanced 2 to 22¾, absorbing Pacific rose ¾ to 93¾, and Missouri Pacific ¾ to 39¾. Louis and Southwestern preferred gained a point to 75¾.

Aggressive buying also occurred in Rock Island, which rose ⅝ to 20⅝, while fractional advances were made in Reading, Delaware and Hudson, Northern Pacific and others.

The copper stocks resumed their upward progress. The Utes was strong.

N. E. Capital in Pere Marquette.

A good deal of New England capital was invested in the Pere Marquette road when it was built. It appeared very much like an investment to many people in this section. For years William W. Crapo of New Bedford was chairman of its directorate. He served several terms as a Republican congressman from Massachusetts. He was often discussed as his party's candidate for governor. He was a very able and spirited.

When the Michigan railroad commission refused to authorize a $4,000,000 bond issue by the road, financial circles were stirred to receivership. The receivers appointed are Frank W. Ballard and Dudley E. Waters of Grand Rapids and Herman Kris of New York, who is chairman of the executive committee. It is said that the Marquette has practically no floating debt and that its bonded obligations are well below those of most similar lines. He thinks that if the road can be allowed to raise the $4,000,000 as requested, all difficulties would have been overcome.

But in Michigan there was much feeling on that question. It was said that it is a Morgan and a "Money Trust" railroad. When he appeared before the commission and personally opposed the bond issue, Governor Osborn of Michigan said that it would be a better plan to have J. P. Morgan and other large stockholders come to the rescue. Chairman Kris says there will be no change in Pere Marquette management.

The Pere Marquette operates in all about 2,200 miles of railroad. Of this about 1,000 miles are in Michigan, the rest is in Ohio, Illinois and Ontario, Canada. Bonds, mortgages and other liabilities of the company aggregate $83,000,000. It was expected in the application of the road for the $4,000,000 bond issue that the funds were absolutely necessary to take care of outstanding indebtedness, as no resources for that purpose were on hand.

Germans Fear Recall of Loans.

The rise of the mill money rate in New York has thrown German borrowers into trepidation. They are afraid that loans to them from Americans, which are estimated by several to be over $100,000,000, will be recalled. The Berlin financial correspondent of the Boston AMERICAN sends this message about the situation to his city to the Boston AMERICAN by Marconi wireless:

"Our intendedness to pay interest has greatly augmented during March and to the end of April represented a very large sum—not less many millions of dollars I might not care to guess.

"No sooner do call money rates rise or look to begin to go up than many hundred of Americans engage set in. When a few cents was reached to call loans on one stock exchange, the means to procure remittances increased.

"I learn, however, that this accessible for redemption does not represent solely preparations for repayment of loans. It reflects to some considerable extent, purchase of American securities in the New York market for German account.

"The relief felt further in our Bourse in face a much rapid raise of the monetary rates than had been anticipated. A keen demand for commercial bills has been instrumental in lowering the open market discount rate.

"But if our American indebtedness is to be materially reduced this will proceed slowly. Therefore the money tightness proving permanent and threatening.

"It also says that in Germany the belief is growing that there is a revival in financial, commercial and manufacturing prosperity in the United States and that New York cables describing stock exchange speculation as a symptom of improvement in the iron, steel and copper industries, are beginning to inspire Berlin's confidence."

Signs of Business Improvement.

One sign that business is improving very fast in this country is the fact that today there are practically no idle freight cars. About a year ago there were 200,000 car of them standing awaiting use. On March 15 last the American Railway Association's statement showed that the number had shrunk to 3,043. There has been nothing like that known in five years, today another statement from the association is expected. It will be a surprise if it does not indicate that there is scarcely a freight car rolling stock which is not in use. With big crops to be moved and strikes in progress which will accumulate freight the railroads of the country, realizing that they are facing a great problem. They are busy with their every power to cope with it. Their equipment with which to handle the business which they see ahead. Car builders have to work overtime to fill orders for the country's requirements. This all also appears in the demand for almost every article of railroad supplies.

Financial News in Brief.

J. P. Morgan & Company, Lee, Higginson & Company and other members of the syndicate announce the sale of the remaining $5,500,000 4½ per cent. bonds issued to meet cash and that the bonds were oversubscribed.

The Big Stone Street Railroad Company has petitioned the Massachusetts gas and electric commission for authority to issue additional capital stock to the amount of $1,000,000 and bonds to the amount of $2,000,000 to be sold at not less than par.

The Washington Gas Light Company has declared the regular quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent. on the common stock, payable April 15 to stock of record April 26. The company is said to be doing a large business and is also engaged in extending the size of mains laid at the rate of one mile per week.

The net profits of the Rubber Goods Manufacturing Company for the year ended December 31 last were $1,078,000, which amounts to $8,200,827 on the $7,500,000 stock outstanding. This is a record of net profits. No official figures obtainable about business improvement in the West, but it is said that there is a steady and substantial improvement of from 10 to 15 per cent. over last year's business.

It is said that agents of the Department of Justice are now in Boston looking into the affairs of the Boston Stock Exchange with a view to the Federal government once again criminal prosecution of the Exchange and its officials under the Sherman Act of Trade and that some of the Wall Street brokers who have been indicted by the Federal grand jury in this city will also be obtained to get "third degree" confessions.

I WAS A Heavy Drinker

Consumed Quart of Whisky Every 24 Hours.

VICTORY IN 3 DAYS

If you know anyone who drinks alcohol in any form, you should send them this notice.

I drank beer at first, then gradually developed into a drinker of whisky. For years I consumed a quart a day. Frequently I wouldn't hesitate to down my coat or break in a saloon window to get drink. I never would drink over a quart of whisky, rum or gin daily, but I drank it regularly, day after day.

My financial, business, health and social opportunities, made totally miserable, lost real friends and became a laughing stock among the saloonkeepers, who cheerfully took my money for the poison they gave me.

For 16 years I kept it up, and I recognized as a slave to drink. Then I was induced to take a treatment which I have a joyful message to disclose.

Mothers, Wives, Sisters

While drifting from bad to worse, as all slaves of Alcohol do, I unexpectedly found a true remedy. It saved me. My health was quickly restored. I became another and a respectable man, accepting every opportunity of freedom that was offered. I was cured naturally and naturally local orders. My blood became pure. My nerves became steady, and boils, buttermilk and other unsightly things, the craving for liquor ceased. I could sleep perfectly, my stomach became well and recovered from other ailments which I now know were due to my indulgence in strong drink.

WONDERFUL

It was done in 3 days! I had relied upon will power or limit myself to a few drinks of alcoholic liquor since I gave up drinking altogether. I decided to devote my life to benefiting the lives of others. My success has been marvelous, for I have a reliable, guaranteed cure of Reverence, and am respected for going to any home, anywhere. My remedies have saved thousands of drunkards. In the instances of many persons who were confirmed drunkards, and naturally local orders, I have received letters and testimonials by the hundreds, every one of which I have on file. Many were saved from the drink habit because they stopped to get rid of it forever and others who did not have any will-power left, were rescued without their knowledge by loving wives, mothers, or friends. The writer edited the taking my remedies given enemy without their knowledge, and in some instances without any effort on their part.

I tell about the secret in my book, which I send FREE to every person or relative of those who takes alcohol to many form to excess. My one purpose in life is to save the drunkard and his family. What I have done for others can be done for you. My remedy is absolutely guaranteed. My remedies are for either steady or periodical drinkers. The Method of it—a complete and delightful overcoming of the drink habit between Friday night and Monday night. Try it—you will be glad you did.

FOR SICK WOMEN AND GIRLS.

Prostitutes, blood or nervous sufferers to whom I will send my book free, will receive free and confidential advice, without any knowledge or charge. AN EASTER MAGAZINE

FREE

WITH TOMORROW'S SUNDAY AMERICAN

THE April Number of the American Monthly Sunday Magazine, which will be given away with every copy of Tomorrow's SUNDAY AMERICAN, will be the EASTER number.

From cover to cover of its 28 pages it is crowded with excellent fiction stories, magazine features by famous writers, handsome illustrations by some of the most famous artists in the country, and short snappy humorous skits which you will find most entertaining.

First of all there is the cover design, a striking Easter Girl by Penrhyn Stanlaws, the famous American illustrator.

Four Enticing Fiction Stories.

"The Blood Pearl" is a thrilling story of adventure. "The Man of No Sorrows" is an Easter story of deep and absorbing interest. "How Father Almost Teaches the Fool a Lesson" is one of Lewis Allen's inimitable humorous yarns. There is also another Raffles adventure.

The Danger of Forcing Children is an article by I. L. Nascher, M. D., of Fordham University School of Medicine, which every mother and father with little ones just beginning their work at school should read.

The Adventures of Cupid

is another of Nell Brinkley's series of drawings showing the adventures of the little god of love.

Have You Some Money in the Bank?

If so, read Amos Stote's article about investment bonds before "taking a chance" in any big dividend proposition.

"Frilly-Lilly," a Brand-New Girly-Girl Feature.

She's the limit. Penrhyn Stanlaws, the famous American Illustrator, draws her. Carolyn Wells, the wittiest American satirist, interprets her. The best social cartoon color page you have ever seen.

Develop Your Bust In 15 Days

A Full, Firm Bust is Worth More to a Woman Than Beauty

Idon't care how thin you are, nowdo you are, how fallen and flaccid are the lines of your figure or how flat your chest, Ican give you a full, firm,youthful bust quickly that will be the envy of your fellow-women and will give you the allurements of perfect womanhood that will be irresistible.

Develop Bust New Way

They say there is nothing new under the sun, but I have perfected a new treatment that I want to share with my sisters. What it did for me it can and will do for you, and I now offer it to you.

Others offer to build up your figure with drugs, greasy skin foods, creams, dieting, massage and expensive appliances and devices. I have done away with all these injurious methods and have given a system of women a luxuriant natural development by a treatment never before offered the public. No massaging, nothing to take, nothing to wear.

I was skinny, scrawny, flat and unattractive to men. Now I claim to be the highest priced artist's model in the United States, and what I did for myself I can do for you.

I don't care what your age may be, I ask only that you be at least sixteen and not an invalid, and I will undertake to develop your bust in two weeks. All I ask is five or ten minutes of your time every day.

WRITE TO ME TO-DAY

It will only cost you a penny for a post card and I will mail you complete information about this wonderful treatment in a plain cover so that no one will know your secret

Don't let a fair pride and a silly sense of shame keep you from enjoying to the full the charms you should have to be a perfect specimen of womanhood. Let me help you. Your communication shall be held in absolute confidence and secrecy. Write me to-day.

COURT SUIT MAY BLOCK MAGDALENA LAND DEAL

NEW YORK, April 6.—The decision of a New Jersey court may completely upset the reported purchase of land in and about Magdalena Bay by a Japanese fishing and trading company, which is said to be backed by the Japanese government.

Investigation today disclosed the fact that John E. Blackman, the promoter who has been negotiating with the Japanese for the disposal of the Mexican concession, bases his claim upon an option which the chief official backers of the enterprise say expired a year ago.

The question as to whether or not Blackman has any right to deal with the Japanese or anybody else is now before the Court of Chancery in Trenton, N. J.

The case is known as the Fidelity Trust Company of Newark, New Jersey, vs. John E. Blackman et al, and came up for argument last Tuesday, but was adjourned.

It may have been a coincidence, but at all events it was last Tuesday that Senator Lodge introduced a resolution which called on President Taft for all available information in the possession of the government relating to the purchase of land in or about Magdalena Bay by Japan.

Important as Base.

The resolution caused alarm in military and naval circles, for the reason that Magdalena Bay has long been regarded as the chief strategic point on the Pacific between California and Panama. Should Japan obtain control of this bit of Mexican coast its navy could command the great trade routes resulting from the opening of the Panama Canal. She could also hustle Uncle Sam's fleet that attempted to enter the Pacific by way of Panama.

Ostensibly the reported purchase was made by the Oriental and Occidental Trust Company, which is closely identified with the Japanese fishing trust, and the Japanese steamship monopoly is being extended in all directions in the Pacific because of the generous subsidies of the Japanese government.

In fact, therefore, the Chinese government stands behind such an enterprise as the reported Magdalena Bay deal, for the reason that one of the provisions of any Japanese subsidy agreement is that private corporations thus aided may be called into use in time of war.

H. P. Lindabury, of the firm of Lindabury, Depew & Fake of Newark, said today at his home in Bernardsville, N. J.:

"Could Be No Bona Fide Sale."

"If the Japanese Government bought the Magdalena Bay property from Blackman, who, I understand, has been very busy looking for a purchaser, there could not have been a bona fide sale. Of any sense sale I certainly would have known of, as I represent the J. E. Henry estate of New Hampshire, which is the largest bondholder in the company that owns the concession.

"Mr. Blackman had an option on the concession which he neglected under certain conditions. Because he failed to meet these conditions, we contend that his option expired a year ago. The whole matter is now before the Court of Chancery at Trenton.

A former associate of Blackman has consented to reveal the inside workings of the syndicate which has been trying for the last five years or more to dispose of the Magdalena Bay grant.

When the Chartered Company of Lower California, a Maine corporation, bought the concession on December 9, 1902, it obtained possession of about 4,200,000 acres along the ocean shore of Lower California, and in eluding Magdalena Bay.

Find No Gold in Land.

After it was discovered that the inexhaustible gold deposits which were supposed to underlie the trail did not exist and that the only revenue possible was from the collecting of seaweed, the people who had paid $625,000 for the Flores Hale concession became anxious to sell it, and the first thing that John E. Blackman a promoter who had a spectacular record, offered his services, and because of his promises to negotiate a speedy sale was brought into the company.

J. E. Henry of Lincoln, N. H., now dead, advanced cheir $200,000 for the company.

Robert H. Law of Chicago is said to have advanced between $40,000 and $80,000; Silas A. Burton, $7,500; James P. Clarke, between $12,000 and $20,000; W. F. Lakin, the late president of the company, about $25,000, and Benjamin L. M. Tower, about $25,000. Others interested are Ernest G. Hiller, Samuel H. Pillsbury, Edmund H. Talbot and Herbert P. Dodge.

Most of the money was raised in and around Boston.

When Blackman obtained a footing in the company, he went to California and began to sell it, and later asked a Japanese syndicate to buy.

Because of prohibition in the deed of the company he went to California and began to use foreign government negotiations were never directly opened between the Japanese authorities of Japan. It was said, however, with good authority that finally the chief government officials of Japan have given the matter their great care, and have been in close consultation with the Japanese financiers.

The Japanese, however, were slow in making up their minds.

Papers Were Signed.

Blackman's option expired, according to the majority of the creditors of the Lower California company, about a year ago. Blackman, however, continued his dickering with the Japanese, and last winter chartered a steamer and took a party of prospective purchasers to Magdalena Bay.

It was on this trip, it is understood, that papers were signed which started the report that the Japanese had purchased the grant, and when it was coming to the ears of Senator Lodge, prompted him to introduce the resolution of last Tuesday.

Blackman has left Chicago. It was said he was bound for California. W. L. Holland, the California promoter who was associated with Blackman in the negotiations of January last, arrived today in Los Angeles after a visit to San Francisco. He denied that the Japanese had bought the grant.

The Fidelity Trust Company of Newark brought the action against Blackman at Trenton because it had been designated as the trustee with which all the holders of bonds were to deposit their securities. Preparatory to a sale a holding company was incorporated in New Jersey, called the Magdalena Bay Company. To it was turned over the $2,000,000 bonds and $10,000,000 common stock of the Lower California Company.

Because of the contention that Blackman's option had expired, the Trust Company asked the court for its decision on this question.

FLOOD WIDENS HICKMAN BREAK

Dead, 25.
Homeless, 10,000.
Square miles covered, 15,000.
Damage, $7,000,000.

Though a period of warm weather would help in drying up the flood waters, it would increase the danger of disease epidemics, and health officials hope that cool weather will prevail.

HICKMAN, Ky., April 6.—Through a crevice two hundred yards in width and steadily increasing, the waters of the Mississippi are pouring and spreading over a territory of hundreds of miles today. Reelfoot Lake, which was formed by an earthquake a century ago, will be joined by the inland sea. Fulton county, Ky., and Lake and Obion counties, Tenn., are vast cisterns of water.

The fight to hold the government levee extending from Hickman to Tiptonville was in vain. The men who labored to keep the levee intact might have succeeded had not the power of the wind been added to that of the water, driving waves against the levee.

Run for Your Lives.

"Run for your lives! The levee has broken," shouted a watcher when the break came.

The long line of laborers scrambled to safety and the gasoline boats that had been mustered for this emergency rescued those in the most dangerous points. There was no loss of life.

Warning was sent through the country in the path of the waters. Two vacated houses in the way of the flood were swept away at once. It will be several days before it can be determined whether there has been loss of life in the surrounding country.

Tonight the men of Hickman will sleep at least. All the levees have broken and there is no need of further toil.

Order is being developed among the refugees and in the tented city the flood sufferers are being cared for. The proper distribution of food supplies is now the chief care of the authorities. Mayfield, Ky., sent several carloads of food and supplies, and Louisville sent $2,250 in money.

Trapped in Home.

Trapped by the swirling waters which rose rapidly in his home after the breaking of the levee, Will Hawkins, an employe of the Mengel Box Company, was found in the attic of his home. He had spent sixty hours there without food or water.

He crawled into the attic Monday night after the levee broke. There was no opening in the roof, the water reaching the ceiling below and all avenues of escape were blocked.

There are more than 3,000 homeless people here now. The Carnegie Library is a food storehouse. All churches and public buildings are in use.

'HECKLING' MADE BACON GET OUT

Robert Bacon of Boston resigned as ambassador to France, according to a dispatch from Washington, because he would not endure what he deemed continual "heckling" by the State Department.

In his resignation last January Ambassador Bacon gave as his reason his recent election to a position as a Fellow of Harvard College. Such is the highest honor Harvard can bestow on a graduate short of the presidency. The reason Ambassador Bacon gave was apparently sound. But it was related that just previous to his resignation the ambassador was piqued at being virtually ignored in the negotiations for the arbitration treaty between France and the United States.

Quarrel With Bureau.

The Washington dispatches throw more light on the situation at the French Embassy. Mr. Bacon had decided to retain the secretary of the legation, Bailey Blanchard. Mr. Blanchard has been in the diplomatic service for years in Paris. He was invaluable to the embassy from Mr. Bacon's viewpoint.

But Huntington Wilson, acting Secretary of State, had a plan of his own to transfer men in the diplomatic service from one post to another. He caused Mr. Blanchard to be transferred to Tokio, where he now is.

Mr. Bacon protested first to the State Department, and next to his friend, Senator Lodge, who took the matter up with the Senate Committee on Foreign Affairs. The committee called for an explanation, and in the meantime held up confirmation of the change.

Protested to Lodge.

Wilson's reply was that the rearrangement was for the good of the service and that it would stand. After considering the matter at half a dozen meetings, the committee came to the conclusion that Wilson had the right to make the transfer.

Mr. Bacon made further protest to Senator Lodge, who got Senator Cullom, chairman of the committee, to write to Secretary Knox, asking that Blanchard be kept in Paris. Knox replied that inasmuch as the change had already been made he was powerless to do anything about it.

PILGRIMS LINE UP AGAINST BALTIMORE ORIOLES FOR GAME

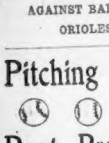
BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTING NEWS

WOOD SELECTED TO DOWN REDS IN FIRST BIG CONTEST

Pitching Puzzle For Pilgrims

Past, Present and Future Stars

By L. R. MURDOCK.
Sporting Editor, American.



BALTIMORE, Md., April 6.—Once more "Cy" Young gets a chance to start something for the Pilgrims, that predicting "Cy's" appearance in the box is worse than guessing the weather. John Montgomery Ward would like to open the season in Boston with the grand old man—also, he would like to see him work a game before then. Just when he will trot out the big fellow depends upon circumstances, and one can guess as well as another. It may be today or tomorrow.

Kling has three others he would like to see in action against good stickmen before the ball rings next Thursday. They are Mattern, Hogg and Dickson.

DOUBLE HEADER FOR SUNDAY.

They are the past, present and future single, but Kirke was caught trying to solve the puzzle of the bunch of pitchers now with stretch the hit. Miller's double tallied the team. Mattern seems to have all his old stuff, but the "Bush Leaguers" have been hitting him. Here's hoping he is not going back.

Hogg has arrived. He is but twenty-two years old, over six feet, a giant in build, and also seems to have everything right now. But he needs observation.

Dickson, the comer, also has everything and has been fooling the "Bushmen." He is being looked over for another purpose—to see if he is only a flash in the pan, or if he will develop into a real star.

One of this trio is likely to get into the game today. If Young does not work, it will likely be Dickson or Hogg.

The Pilgrims open with the Orioles of the International League this afternoon, and tomorrow—Easter Sunday—they expect to play a double-header at Back River Park. Eight miles from here, when an immense crowd is expected.

Cy Young may be saved for that occasion, for your Uncle Cy is a great headliner for the press agents and they have used him all the way up the Atlantic coast.

Griffith Goes From Bad to Worse in Box

George Tyler worked yesterday against the Senators, and the Boston bunch had no trouble in trimming the American Leaguers, seven to five. They should have won farther off, but hits were scarce at the right time, so the offense was not as strong as it should have been, and Tyler let down in the eighth, when his men had a five run lead and the Senators crept up a bit.

Until then they made but three hits off the Pilgrims' best southpaw and he had presented them with only one free ticket. In the last three sessions the Senators gathered five safe ones.

Griffith tried out a youngster—Engel by name. The lad was wild. He couldn't find the plate even when "Germany" Schaefer strolled away in from right field to tell him where it was. He presented seven Pilgrims with free transportation in four innings. But they got nary a hit off him until the fifth, when they began to feed off his curves.

Then Griffith shooed him to the bench and sent forth Boehling. This Engel may be good when he learns that the home plate is an important article of furniture in a baseball game. Until then, don't worry about him.

Boehling was worse than Engel. When he arrived on the scene, Kling's hopes had found how to bat and they took it out of Mr. Boehling. They cleaned up four runs in one session—the sixth. After that the game was just pastime.

Batting Rally for Pilgrims in Sixth

"Tin" Campbell was out long enough to scoop a few fies in fielding practice, but he was not strong enough to work, and Jay B. Kirke, the youngster who is so highly prized because he makes work for the fence builders, was given a chance in midgarden.

McDonald is not yet right, and Jack Spratt was stationed at first. After batting had several uneventful trials, Kirke at last struck his batting eye and it was by hit by a pitched ball. Tyler walked, and with three on, Gowdy drove sharply to Knight that he was safe and everybody else advanced.

Kirke had his second lick at the ball and scored Gowdy and Tyler with his second of last year, when injuries to two of his best players left a big hole in the outfield. Dorchester. The team will be picked from the following: Captain and manager, Ralph Hill; practice, Secretary of the High School of Commerce; Pitchers, Hall, Lane, Cotter, Cotter, Hill Preparatory; Regan, late of Dorchester High; Catchers, Hill, Lane, Cotter, Cotter, Hill Preparatory; Regan, late of Dorchester High; Infielders, Hall, Lane, Cotter, Cotter, Hill Preparatory; Regan, late of Dorchester High; Outfielders, Hall, Lane, Cotter, Cotter, Hill Preparatory; Regan, late of Dorchester High. Games are wanted with the best amateur and semi-professional teams in Boston. Address Manager Edmund L. Dolan, Tolman Hill, Class of Cambridge, Manchester, Mass. Red Sox in First Big Game Today

Wood to Do Honors Against Reds

By H. B. SCHULTZ.

American staff correspondent with Red Sox.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 8.—Joe Wood, the boy wonder, does the honors for Jimmy McAleer's hopes in the first exhibition game with the Reds this afternoon. The game, besides giving the Bostonians their first chance to show the polish of the training season spent at Hot Springs, opens up the new Cincinnati ball park, and of course all Garry Herrmann's bunch will be there, which means a good-sized slice of the city's fanning population.

Though robbed of an opportunity to limber up here, because of lack of diamond or vacant lot facilities, Jake Stahl's youngsters feel primed for the battle.

STAHL TO USE HIS REGULARS.

Last Spring the team played show-off games for weeks, but here is no such program for them this year. After a second exhibition game here tomorrow, the Red Sox leave for home and Tuesday play Harvard.

On Wednesday they step over in Worcester to play against Jesse Burkett's New England League team.

Thursday they jump into league ball in New York so that in all, with weather conditions propitious, the Boston Americans will have played four preliminary games.

Stahl uses his regulars today, Heine Wagner going to short to give his arm a final test. He is not to overdo things, under Stahl's orders. Nunamaker is the backstop and, by the way, something will certainly be doing, as Frank Smith has been telling a story on the catcher.

Smith says that Nunny is the only catcher who ever signaled for a wide ball when the call was two and three. Nunny adds another member to the Anemic Club when he talks about the tale. So all three are expecting something to happen this afternoon.

Boston fans need not expect a particularly fast game as the new grounds have just been sodded and hence are still soft. Still there ought to be plenty of excitement, as both teams are in good shape for work, Cincinnati perhaps having a little the better of it on this end.

McAleer Has Hopes of Landing Pennant.

Manager Hank O'Day will use Rube Benton, a left-hander, which means that Duffy Lewis ought to shine, as Duff is death on the port-siders.

Marsans plays right field, subbing for Mike Mitchell, who was hit on the head in the Columbus game yesterday. O'Day thinks he will miss Mitch, who was one of his best batsmen. Egan plays second just after recovering from a sprained ankle.

President McAleer is pleased with the general results of the Hot Springs stay. He thinks the team has a good chance for capturing the pennant, and is sure they will be up near the top in the team race.

The statement already printed in the AMERICAN that McAleer will trim his squad considerably before the season is half over is verified on the best authority today.

McAleer does not intend to go through the season with more than twenty-two men and possibly with only twenty-one players. He will take the entire twenty-five in the squad back to Boston as his plans now go. Later on will come the shedding off of a couple of twirlers and still later on a catcher. It is even possible that another pitcher may be let out.

Start for Home On Sunday Night

President McAleer has been advised by General Taylor that the Worcester game will, in all likelihood, be played Wednesday. Stahl will doubtless give way to Bradley on first, as Hugh is an old favorite in the Heart of the Commonwealth and, by the way, has been playing stellar ball every time on this trip.

The first night in this city brought a general invitation to the team to see "The Chocolate Soldier" from the leading man, who is an old pal of Joe Wood and Tris Speaker.

Treasurer McRoy left for Boston after piloting the team safely through the flooded Mississippi district. The railroad men predicted that the Red Sox special would be the last train to pull through the water until the freshets had subsided. In places the water came over the wheels of the engine and mud came near stalling out the locomotive.

This afternoon's game begins at 3 o'clock. Tomorrow the game starts half an hour earlier, to give the Red Sox a chance to get away on the 6 o'clock train, which will put them into Boston Monday night.

Battery Men Prove Best Poker Players

NEW ORLEANS, April 8.—There are few ball players who don't play poker. The limit of the game is always small, ranging from penny ante to a 5 cent or 10 cent game; it is rarely 10 cents, and the only object is to pass the time away on trains and in hotels when it rains. That ball players play poker isn't the point of the story. The statement that they play and how much they play for is made only to set everybody right.

The Naps this Spring have a superstition that catchers and pitchers are better poker players than the others because they work more than the other players on the field toward fooling the opposing batsmen. This superstition has held good pretty well with the Naps. The Nap catchers have rarely quit losers.

The Detroit Tigers' poker record this Spring knocks this theory galley west. Oscar Stanage, the Detroit catcher, is a shark at outguessing batters in a ball game, but he can't outguess a poker player worth a cent. Stanage has been the most consistent loser on the Tigers' Spring trip.

MAGEE BADLY HURT.

PHILADELPHIA, April 6.—The Phillies have met their first piece of hard luck this season, it having been announced that Sherwood Magee, left fielder, would be out of the game a month with a broken wrist. Magee was hit on the wrist by Schultz in batting practice, but did not bother about it, although he suffered considerable pain. It got worse and Magee went to the hospital, where an X-Ray examination was made. The picture clearly showed a broken bone and the wrist was placed in splints.

DE ORO IS BEATEN.

PHILADELPHIA, April 6.—James Maturo of Denver defeated Alfredo de Oro of New York in a pocket billiard match, 150 to 136. Maturo will play Edward Ralph of Hightstown, N. J., for the National championship trophy today.

TROUBLE ARISES OVER MATTY

BALTIMORE, April 6.—Developments in the case of Griffith vs. McGraw, involving a question of ethics, indicate that the National Commission will be asked to sift the controversy and officially rebuke the man who bunkoed Washington fans last Tuesday, when Christy Mathewson failed to meet Walter Johnson in an advertised bout at the capital.

If Griffith persists in his charge that McGraw is to blame he will have an opportunity to present his proof to the commission, because if he doesn't ask for a showdown McGraw will. The manager of the Giants is no quitter as a bolt, and he doesn't propose to let Griff get away with these accusing statements.

McGraw got back at Griffith good and strong today after he heard about Griffith's affair in the Washington papers. One clipping from a Washington paper particularly incensed him. It related that Griff had any agreement with McGraw in writing he could present it to the commission and obtain redress, as a minor league club did a year ago when the Chicago Club failed to play certain players who had been advertised to appear in an exhibition game.

Tech Athletes in Annual Meet Today

The Tech freshmen and sophomores hold their annual meet at Tech Field today. At the same time the class cross-country race is held from Highland to the field over the Tech course.

The track meet should be close. The sophomores have the better men in the running events, while the freshmen have the better weight lassoers.

The cross-country race is expected to result in a win for the 1914 crack as they should take the first three places and possibly the fourth. They have four varsity men on their lineup.

The race for first place should be among A. P. Nye, G. C. Stuhl and C. S. Lee, all of the sophomore class.

Cathedral Handicap Road Race Today

The Cathedral Y. M. C. A. ten mile handicap road race today starts promptly at 3 in front of the clubhouse in Union Park street, and the course will run through Harrison avenue to Massachusetts avenue to Columbia road to Bine Hill avenue as far as Morton street and return with the finish at Union Park street and Harrison avenue.

To prevent crowding at the finish a large number of men will be on hand and there is little likelihood of a repetition of the finish last year, when Festus Madden and E. Clem finished so evenly that the judges declared them tied for second place.

MALONEY REPORTS.

BROCKTON, April 6.—Pat Maloney, the fast Mill League outfielder, will play here this season. His signed contract has been received and President McCue of the New England League team notified that he would report here Monday. Maloney was purchased from the Galveston club of the Texas League, and awarded to Brockton by the National Board, after Worcester had made a claim on him.

MORE BOUTS FOR NEWARK.

NEWARK, N. J., April 6.—Boxing is to be restored at Newark, beginning on the night of April 16. The Eleventh Ward Democratic Club is to hold the show, which will be in the open air at the Newark baseball grounds. Sammy Kelly has been appointed matchmaker of the club, and has signed Mike Glover of Boston and Young Kurtz of Newark to meet in the main bout.

M'INTYRE COMES BACK.

CHICAGO, April 6.—Having been missing since the close of last season, Matty McIntyre, outfielder for the Chicago American League club, has reported here. Explaining his absence, he said he was playing baseball in Cuba this Winter and thought that Manager Callahan knew of his whereabouts.

WON MATCH BY LONE POINT.

NEW YORK, April 6.—By running up the necessary fifty points in sixty-one innings Samuel Carfunkle of New York defeated Dr. A. Shell of Chicago by a single point in a National Billiard League game.

ALBERT LOST TO FRANK.

In the B class amateur billiard tourney at the Elite, Frank defeated Albert 200 to 181.

YALE BEATS CORNELL.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Cornell's first baseball team was beaten by Yale here, 4 to 1, in a rattling good game. Brinsmead, the Eli pitcher, had everything his own way.

New England Stars Who May Represent U. S. at Stockholm

Oliver Johnstone.

THE AMERICAN will print from day to day a series of articles telling what New England athletes stand a chance of being aboard the steamer Finland when the vessel leaves its moorings in New York harbor in June bearing the athletes who will wear the Stars and Stripes in the Olympic games at Sweden. This is the ninth of the series of articles. There are some thirty New England stars who stand a chance of being sent to the games. By following the series the readers will know the history of each runner who will attempt to bring back athletic laurels to this country.

J.

OLIVER JOHNSTONE is one of the most promising high jumpers that has ever been developed in New England. He is a big, overgrown boy, and is getting better every day. There is no knowing what Johnstone will be able to accomplish in the high jump within a few more years. As it is, he is recognized as one of the best high jumpers in the United States.

Johnstone is the holder of the American interscholastic high jump record, having cleared the bar at 6 feet 1¼ inches in a schoolboy meet. At the classic B. A. A. indoor games he jumped 6 feet 2¼ inches. This is the best high jump ever made by a schoolboy.

The Brookline boy is now a student at Worcester Academy. While at Worcester Academy he has smashed many minor school and academy records in dual meets.

Johnstone first attracted attention at Brookline High. He has developed wonderfully since he entered Worcester Academy and under the able coaching of J. Fred Bowser, former world's all-around amateur champion, he is now considered one of the foremost high jumpers in the land.

The Worcester crack has already started training for the Olympic trials and is a strong candidate for a position on the team. Horine and Lawrence are virtually sure of going to Sweden, and Johnstone may be taken along as a third or fourth string man. His admirers claim that he will be able to defeat either Lawrence or Horine after he has had a little more experience. Johnstone is only twenty years of age, so it can readily be seen that he will be able to compete for many more years.

Brown Boys Line Up Against Providence

PROVIDENCE, April 6.—The Providence and Brown University nines line up today in the first game of the season here. Providence will go out to win, and the regulars are to open the battle with the collegians, although Lake may send in his substitutes after a few innings. The teams will play as follows:

Providence—Hopkins, l.f.; Lathers, 1b.; Drake, c.f.; Elston, r.f.; Atz, 2b.; Gilleadorf, ss.; Hock, ss.; Reynolds, or Beckendorf, c.; Mitchell or Renfro, p.

Brown—K. Nash, s.s.; Dykette, 2b.; Durgin, 1b.; Snell, c.; Lour, r.f.; Reilly, c.f.; Dike, l.f.; R. Nash, c.f.; Counsman, Warner, Cram or Redington, p.

BUSY DAY FOR SCHOOL NINES

Today is the first big day of the scholastic baseball season, nine games being on the schedule. The past week has been vacation time at all of the high schools, but the boys have put in many hours of good hard practice, so it is expected that the games will all be well played.

Two of the schools of the Suburban League open the season today, Medford playing the Tech freshmen and Melrose playing Boston College High.

With the exception of right field, Medford will have the same team that won the Suburban League championship last season and the boys are out to make it four straight pennants in this league. The boys have been working out under the direction of Coach Kendall for the past month and are in good condition for a hard game.

The game between Melrose High and Boston College High should be a good battle. Both teams have been working for the past month and are anxious to get into a real battle.

The Cambridge Latin team meets Lowell Textile at Lowell. This will be the second game of the week for the Cantabs and they are out to repeat the performance of Thursday.

Boston Latin opens its season against the Concord High team at Concord and expects to start off with a win. Brown and Nichols play its first game against Wellesley High at Wellesley. Allinton Waterfown at Allinton, Pawtucket at Pawtucket, Roxbury plays Ipswich, Chelsea plays the Alumni and Dean Academy meets Worcester South High at Franklin.

Warm Weather Comes Just Right for Schoolboys.

The schoolboys took advantage of the warm weather yesterday afternoon and got in good practice. Although the diamonds were a little wet this did not hinder the work.

Fight on for Catcher's Job at Mechanic Arts.

Mechanic Arts has a number of boys working for the catching job and a great fight is being put up by all the candidates. Dempsey, the regular catcher of last season, and Talbot seem to have a call, but still the new candidates are fighting hard.

Murray Turning Out Good Swimmers for Andover.

Coach William Murray is doing some great work with the Andover swimming team. He has had thirty men working in the tank and out of this bunch has picked a well-balanced team.

Fullerton is performing in great style in the 220 yards, doing the distance in 2m 20 seconds. Moore is working good in the 100 yard dash, while Captain Bowditch Gould and Resendeld are also showing good form.

Joe Collins of Malden To Coach Ohio Team.

Joe Collins, who is coaching the Malden High baseball team, will coach the Heidelberg College football team out in Ohio. Collins acted in the same capacity last year and made a big hit and has been re-engaged.

AMHERST BADLY BEATEN.

GREENSBORO, N. C., April 6.—The Amherst ball tossers went down to defeat at the hands of the Trinity College team by the score of 8 to 2. Many runs were made during the game, the visitors getting the early part of the game through sleepy work and the heavy and their listless playing caused their downfall.

RILEY'S COLUMN

WARD has reduced his bunch of homeward-bound Pilgrims to twenty men, including the seven fielders, Kirke and Spratt, substitutes, three catchers and eight pitchers. Some of the excess baggage in the battery department will likely be sent to Boston today or tomorrow.

* * *

TY COBB comes out with a statement that only three teams will figure in the big honors in the American League this year. He picks the Athletics, Detroit and the Boston Red Sox to battle for the flag.

* * *

THE Lowell team of the New England league has secured a promising outfielder from the St. Louis Americans. Homer Magee, who has been down South with the Browns, has been turned over to the Lowell team.

* * *

JACKSON is beginning to shine as a base runner. The Texas kid burst into the limelight last Summer in a hitter, pure and simple. Lately his hitting has not been so good, but that may have been due to a slight, but bothersome illness on the Southern trip.

* * *

HARRY DAVIS has decided on his roster of pitchers for the start of the season. He will have Gregg, Blanding, James, Swindell, Mitchell, Kramp, Kaier and Gedeon.

* * *

FROM present reports it looks as if Manager Harry Wolverton of the New York Highlanders will get into a game now and then. The new manager has been getting himself into playing condition down South.

* * *

JACK MILLER is showing vast improvement in his work at first base this season and the Pittsburg fans believe that the first base proposition has been adjusted at last.

* * *

JAKE STAHL has discovered a wonderful improvement in his men on the mound. Jake declares that he has the best pitching corps in the American League and the writer agrees with Jake—if his men work up to their best form. Except Joe Wood, they did not do that until late last season.

* * *

ROGER BRESNAHAN will have his same lineup in the race this year. The youngsters that surprised the National League for a time last season are playing good ball this Spring, and Roger will stand pat.

* * *

KEEFE, the youngster who was tried out by the Boston Nationals last Spring, has reported to Manager McGovern of the Lynn team and he is expected to cover the left garden regularly this season.

* * *

BOTH Red Sox and Pilgrims are eager to reach Boston now, and are already rubbishing their Summer homes there. Southern training is all right as far as it goes, but it has a tendency to go a little too far for complete comfort.

* * *

THE Cleveland fans think that Lajoie is down for a great season this year. The big second-sacker will have nothing to worry about this year.

* * *

JOE MONAHAN, the recruit catcher with the Pilgrims, will have a large following in this town if he sticks with the team. Joe hails from Cambridge, and is one of the most popular athletes of that section. He started his baseball career on the Cambridge playgrounds.

* * *

HANK O'DAY has become very popular since he gave up his umpiring job and signed as manager. Hank will be given a testimonial when he reaches Chicago on his first trip around the circuit. Friends of the former umpire are now collecting a fund to buy him a substantial gift.

* * *

WARD and Kling insist on more ginger and they expect to keep at it every day until the season opens next Thursday. This constant insistence on higher speed has resulted in a noticeable improvement every day in the work of the Pilgrims.

President is Firm In Olympic Ruling

WASHINGTON, April 6.—President Taft will adhere to his decision not to appoint a commissioner to officially represent the United States at the Olympic games unless a request for the appointment comes from the Swedish government.

The attitude is taken that the White House limit for the President to appoint a commissioner after receiving word that other nations would not appoint such representatives, and that the International committee did not desire commissioners, would be to force an official representative on Sweden.

A Bachelor's Diary

No. 2—He Discovers What Tyrants Women Can Be in the Guise of Love

By MAX

FEBRUARY 24.—My dear diary, you have become more than a trusted friend—you have become a habit.

Every one is so panic that he has to tell some one his secret. Some tell their friends, forgetting that their friends also have friends, and a confidence becomes public property. Some tell only the Lord, but I am not that way. I live my joys all over again by writing them down in this little book, and I lose a portion of my troubles me when things go wrong by coming to you.

Just now I can't say that anything has gone wrong. Nothing can I write with joyful pen. I am puzzled; that's the trouble. And I am puzzled because I don't understand women.

Josephine wouldn't let me come up the other night because I can't play bridge. She was going to have Pebbles and two others who think that bridge ability enhances the wisdom of owls and apes.

I despise a man who can spend hour after hour shuffling cards and dealing them out again, and to whom winning a rubber is the greatest feat in life. He's a sissy, a mollycoddle. He has the intellect of one who will play jacks all day for peanuts and count the time well spent.

I never say anything about this to Josephine. If she likes to play cards, all right, but when she wouldn't let me come up I didn't see any wrong in going to call on Mary Playter.

But I know better now. When I told Josephine where I had been she flew into a violent rage. I didn't know that any one as little and sweet as Josephine could display such temper. She stamped her foot and walked the floor, and doubled up her hands into fists and cried, and when I tried to pick her up in my arms and wipe the tears away she gave me a slap on the face. I didn't know before that Josephine had so much strength.

She Was Jealous

She was jealous of Mary Playter! Plain Mary Playter, who never had a lover in her life, and who never thinks of such a thing. I don't believe Mary has been kissed since I kissed her when we were classmates at school. I couldn't believe Josephine would be so unreasonable.

"You wouldn't let me come up here," I began in my defence.

"That makes no difference," she retorted. "Couldn't you be content spending an evening at home occasionally? Must you always be with a woman? Can't you be satisfied unless some woman has you in tow?

"And of all women, Mary Playter! That designing, ugly old cat," her wrath taking new flame. "You will promise me right now you will never go near her again. Either that, or you will never come here!"

To my everlasting shame I promised. I seem to have become as subdued as an old married man, and here I have been engaged only three weeks.

I tried to add a clause to my promise that she must also give up Pebbles, but she flew into such a passion at the suggestion that I apologized for making it.

"I trust you, Josephine," I said, when I had coaxed her to return to a seat beside me. "I am sorry you don't trust me."

"I trust you, Max," she replied, "but I don't trust other women."

Must Give Up Mary

And Mary Playter, plain Mary Playter, of all women! I suppose it means, Diary Mine, that I must give up a friendship that hasn't failed me in twenty-five years.

February 26.—Josephine had an engagement tonight; she wouldn't tell me what, so I spent the evening here alone. I would like to hunt up some of the boys, but when she objected too strongly to my calling on Mary Playter, she intimated that there were a lot of my men friends she didn't like either.

That's strange, for a nicer bunch of fellows never breathed. Of the nine of them who used to meet in here so often there is only one she really knows, and that is John Kemp. It seems to me I heard she and John once had a love affair, but I don't believe it. If she had, she would have told me about it.

Barred from all my friend and finding no interest in my books, I have been taking a sort of inventory of my possessions, bonds, stocks, mortgages, etc.

I had no idea I was quite so well off. I have been plodding along so many years in a humdrum sort of way, never losing any money, and never making any startling gains, that somehow I had lost sight of the fact that all these slow gains were rolling up.

Wealth has never meant much to me. It was the means, not the ends, that interested me. I have enjoyed working for money, more than the thoughts of the money. Books and a pipe don't cost much, and they were my chief expenditures till I met Josephine.

A Millionaire

I wonder if she would be glad to know that I am touching seven figures. I don't believe she would care. Josephine loves the pretty things of life, but she likes me more than she likes money. Once when we were talking of our marriage I told her of the home I wanted for her and she said she preferred to board; that it would be cheaper to board than to keep house.

"Of course, Max," she said, patting me on both sides of my face in what I call her hypnotizing way, "I would prefer keeping house. I know all I would miss in not having a cute little house to keep clean, and a darling little kitchen all my own, and nice little meals to cook for you, but I will give up all my dreams to live in a hotel with you. I am satisfied it would be cheaper for you."

And that's the way she always talks, Diary Mine. She has made me realize that it will be a great sacrifice to have no pots and kettles to wash, but she is willing to make the sacrifice for my sake.

And surely if a girl will give up all that housekeeping means to her that she may live an idle life in a hotel, it proves her love for a man is sincere.

Now that I know the expense need be no longer considered, Josephine will be pleased.

She has said so much about cunning cook stoves, and sweet little casseroles, and darling little kitchen ranges and pots and pans, I know her joy will be complete when I tell her the sacrifice is not necessary.

She shall have her own little kitchen just whenever and wherever she pleases, and she shall have every cunning little scrubbing brush and broom I have heard her sigh for.

No, indeed, Josephine shall not give up her dreams of housewifely joy to live in a big hotel if I can help it.

For this reason, and many others, Diary Mine, I am grateful. I am grateful that I have health and strength and wealth, that I may devote them all to Josephine.

I'll surprise her the next time I call by handing her a lot of kitchen catalogues.

Sauce for the Goose

THE lady was attired in the height of fashion—dressed to kill, in fact—and she strutted majestically through the main street of the village.

Suddenly her eye became fixed upon a small boy, and she bristled with anger. The boy was barefegged and shabby, and in his hand he shamelessly carried a bird's nest full of little brown eggs.

"You're a bad, wicked boy!" snapped the lady, without the slightest preliminary introduction.

The bold, bad boy was not one whit alarmed nor alarmed.

"How could you rob the nest?" she continued. "No doubt the poor mother is even now grieving for the loss of her eggs."

"Not she, mum," came the cheeky reply. "She's part o' your hat!"

Then the fashion-plate proceeded rather faster on her weary way.

Didn't Want a Light.

Mrs. Matchmaker—Nellie, dear, do you think that young Huggins, who has been calling on you twice a week for some time now, is matrimonially inclined?

Nellie—Really, I don't know what to think, mamma dear. He has such a knack of keeping one in the dark.

New Facts About Eczema

For years eczema was thought to be incurable, and it is so considered today by many people. But since the compounding of Cadum, eczema is now a curable disease. Cadum has proved a blessing to many who have suffered for wears from distressing, stubborn and disfiguring skin diseases. It is soothing and healing to an inflamed, irritated or diseased skin. It stops the itching at once, and begins healing with the first application. It is antiseptic, and when applied to an open sore or wound prevents infection from disease germs. Cadum quickly acts upon eczema, pimples, sores, blotches, ulcers, eruptions, rashes, rough skin, chafings, itching piles, etc. At all druggists, 10c. and 25c. per box.

Easter Lilies — Two Varieties — By Nell Brinkley

A Ballade of Easter.

By William F. Kirk

To the same old world with its light and shade,
The same old world with its grief and woe,
The Easter sun is again displayed,
And the lilies are waving to and fro
As they waved on a Sunday long ago
When the guardian rock was rolled away;
Let us be glad, for the sunbeam's glow
Is the smile of Christ on the world today.

Where is the cross that the Romans made?
Gone, with all the Roman show.
Where is the crown of thorns that laid
The suffering head of the Saviour low?
Where is the blood they made to flow?
Buried 'neath centuries of decay!
Let us rejoice, for the sunbeam's glow
Is the smile of Christ on the world today.

Over on Calvary's dismal grade,
Where the shades of the night their visions throw,
Lurks the phantom of Pilate, sore afraid,
For two thieves gibber "You willed it so!"
And the Magdalen's shadow seems to grow—
But all alone in their gloom are they,
For the morning comes, and the sunbeam's glow
Is the smile of Christ on the world today.

ENVOY.

Prince of Light, 'tis to thee men owe
What they seek with blossoms and songs to pay.
Let us be glad, for the sunbeam's glow

BY VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

ONE would think that, since courtesy costs so little and pays so well, it would be universally cultivated, but it is not, as those know who travel on public conveyances who have dealings with the rank and file of men and women in offices and on the street.

I do not mean to suggest that the principle underlying good manners should be that of policy, for self-interest is the lowest incentive to saying or doing the polite or agreeable thing, but since some people have not sufficient self-respect to make them civil, self-interest might make them so.

There is in a fashionable millinery store a woman who made courtesy her main asset when she began to earn her own living. Her reason for this was not any thought of personal benefit to accrue from it, except as a consciousness of doing right keeps one on good terms with one's self. But she had too much self-respect and unselfishness to be rude.

Her unfailing civility and pleasant manners attracted customers and pleased them so much that women who had heretofore bought at other shops the particular articles she sold got into the habit of coming to this store that Miss Smith (we will call her that for the sake of convenience) might wait on them.

This led to her engagement in another shop at a larger salary, and several years later she was persuaded by the manager of another emporium to become head of a department in her special line. Every move has meant an increase in salary. And through all the changes she has preserved her unfailing gentleness and good humor. She is not pretty, she is not especially clever, but she is polite. Surely in her case courtesy was a wise investment.

How often it is conspicuous by its absence! "One would think that to be civilous as a street car conductor one must pass a competitive examination in discourtesy," remarked a man as he stepped from one of our surface cars. It would indeed seem so. When one meets, as fortunately one sometimes does, a respectful conductor, one actually feels like taking his number and reporting him as deserving higher pay. I saw one such last week as he helped a blind man from the car and detained him until the stream of automobiles had passed before allowing him to cross to the sidewalk in front of the public institution for those afflicted as was he.

The same conductor had lifted my satchel on the car for me a few minutes earlier, and when I thanked him he (wonder of wonders) touched his hat and said "That's all right, ma'am." I was almost tempted to commit the impudence of tipping him. Which would have been a mistake, as it is well to have some officials whom we do not have to tip in order to get decent service, as sometimes wonders if the fact that there is nothing in the way of cash to be gained immediately by politeness explains its absence on many of our street cars.

Makes Things Brighter

It is remarkable how good manners lubricate the wheels of the machinery of life. We may not appreciate that the majority of the people with whom we come in contact in street, shop and office has much to do with the state of our own spirits. When the elevator boys, the conductors or trainmen, the clerks and acquaintances one meets are polite and considerate one's enjoyment of life is materially increased.

As to family life! Words fail to describe the difference in the atmosphere of the home in which the inhabitants are courteous to each other. I once visited the home of a husband and wife where gruff speech and replies made the casual observer think that the pair had a rooted aversion to each other, and yet they were really a rather devoted couple. Of course this disagreeable manner was especially evident at breakfast time, that crucial period in the family life in which tempers are tried and tested as at no other time of the day. But one can be agreeable if one wishes, even at the breakfast table. I really think that in the family courtesy brings more genuine happiness than do brains or riches.

The best loved people are those who are most agreeable. I heard a story once of a man who married a woman whom all his friends thought very plain and commonplace. She certainly was not clever. She was a fair housekeeper and the man's home was as neat and comfortable as the average home, but there was nothing remarkable about it.

Still the husband seemed to live in a state of beatific content. He loved his home and wife, returning to them as soon as possible after his day's work was done. The neighbors in the little village in which he lived wondered at his devotion to the simple, homely little woman. He had a way of saying, "My wife" as if he were speaking of his queen.

A Terrible Blow

Then the wife died and the man's heart was almost broken. The neighbors, watching him, saw him grow old and gray in a few weeks, although he did not talk of his grief.

They learned that he had given orders for a stone to be erected over his wife's grave, and they hoped to learn from the inscription on it the secret of the woman's hold on her husband, the reason, perhaps, for his deep love for her. And when the stone was in place a group of the curious villagers hurried to the churchyard to read the eulogium they thought would be carved on the face of the monument. But they saw only the wife's name and the dates of her birth and death, and underneath those in large letters, the words, "SHE WAS SO PLEASANT."

It was the highest tribute the man could pay to the woman who had blessed his life by her happy companionship.

It is not much of a story—but it may be helpful to remember it.

"Give Me My Own"

A VERY absent-minded member of the French Institute was reading a newspaper in the casino at Dieppe. He was absorbed in his reading, and with his left hand he unconsciously pushed the files of newspapers on the table. Each moment he sent them farther from him. Beyond the papers was an inkstand, which at last the moving papers pushed over the side of the table. It fell on the trousers of a Paris banker, who was furious at the accident.

The absent-minded man offered his best excuses without appeasing the banker's wrath, who shrieked that his new trousers were ruined.

"But, sir, I will cheerfully pay for them. He good enough to give me your card, and I will send the money to your hotel."

"To my hotel, sir! I don't know you. I must instantly have the thirty francs these trousers cost."

The member of the institute drew forth the thirty francs and handed them to the banker. Then he said:

"Now that you have been paid, I hope you will have enough of the delicacy of a gentleman to remain in my trousers. You know they are mine, and I insist upon their immediate delivery to me. You have no confidence in me; I have none in you. My trousers!"

In vain the banker protested against such haste. The crowd that had gathered about the disputants said the member of the Institute was right, and the banker, after saying for another pair of nether garments, surrendered the ink-stained ones amid the laughter of the bystanders.

I.—IN HOSTILE HANDS.

Tightly bound, Claude Eclaire is now in the power of Desmond, who is aided by the cruel Russians. The minions of the Czar believe that Claude is mixed up in a many plot to have China pass under British dominion. It is useless for our hero to protest his innocence, for Desmond falsely counterfeits the frightened Chinese witness against him, and the Russians cannot be convinced.

II.—HOLDING UP THE MAIL.

Everything is loot to the Russian officers. The moment they see the Chinese mail carrier coming along they resolve to hold him up and get what letters he has. There may be something of value to be had. Accordingly the march is halted while one of the slaves in Persia, with the stories of war loot, arrives. As usual in the Desmond series, there is wild excitement among them over this interesting news.

III.—LOOT

In view of the glowing events that are taking place in the Orient, the Russian officers make haste to open the daily papers to learn the latest news. Instantly their eyes fall upon headlines relating to the Russians in Persia, with the stories of war loot. Claude is halted while one of the officers, after reading the articles, turns quickly about.

IV.—OFF TO PERSIA

Immediately the entire force of Russians forget all about Desmond, Claude and our hero. The native Republicans, Desmond, and take to their heels in a mad scramble for the nearest railroad station. They are all for Persia and plunder. Desmond is angry at this desertion, but thinks he can safely hold the captives single-handed, especially as Claude is bound.

V.—PRESSED INTO SERVICE

Desmond, however, has reckoned without his host. The native Republicans, fighting machines of the utmost ferocity, are not actively engaged in helping the Republic of China. Desmond, Claude and Rosamond are now seized and pressed into the service of the patriots. They are given no choice.

VI.—THE FLAG VICTORY

"I'm the host!" cries Desperate Desmond, "and I feel like leaving the beginning of the fighting to my guests." The villain, together with his former captives, has to labor all day in taking rest thus from the Republic of China. Each wears a of eagerness for the success of the cause. Republic must be lined up against it; so however, he is plotting, to escape and to show what success the villain has met with.

Dr. Wiley, Like Other Earnest Men, Is Hard to Kill

And the Germs and Chemicals and Other Agencies Which Dishonest Manufacturers Substitute for Food Are Rejoicing Too Soon

Copyright, 1912, by American-Journal-Examiner

Dr. Wiley, leader and fighter in the struggle for pure food, has proved himself one of the world's greatest liberators.

This man, fighting single-handed against the combination of dishonest manufacturers of "foods" and "medicines," has liberated human beings from the ancient theory that it is quite proper to substitute sawdust for food, seaweed for jelly, dangerous acids for lemon, clay for chocolate—if the substitutor can make money by his substitutions.

Dr. Wiley has freed the people of this country from the ancient notion that a profit of ten cents on the dollar justifies the use of poisons in food that destroy the lining of the human stomach.

Dr. Wiley is the man who has compelled those that sell poisons and call them "remedies" to print on the labels in plain English the NAMES of the poisons masquerading as remedies.

Dr. Wiley has earned the everlasting gratitude of the people by establishing the fact that the health of ninety millions of human beings is more important than the profits of a few sharks engaged in wholesale poisoning on a dividend-paying basis.

After years of faithful service in the public employ, after a bitter fight against poisonous "remedies" and chemicalized "foods," Dr. Wiley was at last compelled to retire from the government service.

Dr. Wiley found that while he was fighting the food poisoners before him he was being hampered and harassed by the politicians behind him.

Dr. Wiley found that instead of being aided by the government he was being interfered with by the government.

And finally, being unable to contend at the same time with the food poisoners and the politicians, being unable to do his best work in an administration which was wholly out of sympathy with his efforts, Dr. Wiley resigned.

The cartoon reproduced on this page, taken from the Louisville Post, represents Old Skeleton Death and the various food poisons rejoicing at Wiley's departure from the government employ.

These misguided enemies of mankind rejoice prematurely—for Dr. Wiley, although he leaves the service of the government, is by no means leaving the service of the PEOPLE.

It is great satisfaction to announce that Dr. Wiley's work will continue on a larger and broader scale than heretofore, and without any of those restrictions with which cunning and dishonest manufacturers and their allies, the dull or unscrupulous politicians, have been able to hamper Dr. Wiley.

When the magazine Good Housekeeping heard of Dr. Wiley's difficulties in the government and of his determination to retire from government employ, it offered to maintain his establishment in Washington, to give him all the laboratory facilities he could use or desire, and to make public his reports in the columns of the magazine without limitations of any kind.

Hereafter, instead of being hampered and harassed in his work, Dr. Wiley will be able to investigate anything and everything without consideration for anybody except the public.

Dr. Wiley's new and bigger work begins with the May number of Good Housekeeping, the magazine that guarantees to the doctor an opportunity to print the whole truth and keep the public informed.

Newspapers throughout the country, unaware that Dr. Wiley has arranged for usefulness greater than ever, deplore the doctor's retirement from public service as a great national loss.

The Baltimore Sun says that it is "another of his (Mr. Taft's) mistakes."

The Pittsburg Leader says that the retirement of Dr. Wiley "is another blot on the Taft regime."

The Cleveland Leader, a Republican newspaper, declares that the Republican Administration, in consequence of Dr. Wiley's retirement, "will now face a flaming public indignation."

The New York Press and the Springfield Republican predict great political danger for Mr. Taft in the pure food situation.

The Providence Journal believes that evil influences "have triumphed in the enormous undertaking of wearing out Dr. Wiley" and foresees that "the public interests will be inadequately served and the pure food law flouted," now that Dr. Wiley has left the public service.

Throughout the land Dr. Wiley's retirement calls forth a flood of pessimistic regret and prediction.

Luckily the predictions are unfounded.

Dr. Wiley's work will continue on the broadest scale, supported by the powerful magazine Good Housekeeping and by the other magazines associated with it.

His work will be backed up by the full strength of the HEARST newspapers throughout the country.

This administration and any administration that may follow it will be compelled to observe the pure food laws and to deal fairly with the public, if only through fear of the unhampered work that will be done by Dr. Wiley in his new environment.

There is no real force in this country except public opinion. That force will be at Dr. Wiley's disposal, with ample means to make it effective.

And those who predict, through lack of information, direful results of Dr. Wiley's retirement may rejoice in the fact that his real work has only just begun.

Dr. Wiley Has Resigned

This cartoon, by Plaschke, in the Louisville Post, shows poisons used in food, microbes of disease and their father, Death, dancing joyfully because Dr. Wiley is no longer a Government employe. Old Death and his friends, the germs and poisons, are rejoicing prematurely, however. For Dr. Wiley's work is to continue on a broader scale—free, independent, more beneficial than ever. Get Rid of the "Going Abroad" Germ—See the Wonders of Your Own Land First

The Eastern Man Knows Little of the United States, but He Is Well Informed About the Interesting Places and Things of Europe

By Frances L. Garside

THE Eastern man lives so close to the Atlantic coast that he forgets his country has any other boundary line.

In a dim, indistinct way, he has heard there are cities and rivers and forests out West, but that there is anything of interest there he doubts.

He does now know if St. Louis is situated at the mouth of the Rio Grande or at the headwaters of the St. Lawrence, but he does know (note his pompous tread!) just how much enjoyment there is in a trip up the Nile.

The big trees of California awaken no desire to see them. "I am more interested," he says, "in the Black Forest of Germany."

He knows that somewhere in the West there is a town devoted to the flouring industry, but speaking of flour reminds him of loaves of bread you can get abroad that are half a yard long.

He Thinks Any Live Easterner Can Jump the Grand Canyon

The petrified forests of the West fail to awaken his interest, and any allusion to that great freak of nature, that immense chasm across Mother Nature's face, the Grand Canyon of Arizona, is met with his opinion that such descriptions are exaggerated. Down in the bottom of his heart he thinks this Grand Canyon Westerners talk about is so narrow a real live man from the East could jump it and have breath to spare.

Somewhere up in the State of New York they are building a dam. "Wonderful, wonderful!" he exclaims, and refuses to credit the immensity of the great irrigation ditch that is making the cactus-covered plains of the West blossom like a rose.

Up there in the Dakotas there are ranches so immense the owner says a week's goodby to his family when he starts to cross one, and a prosperous farmer's domains are so extensive he does not know their exact acreage himself. But all this, and more, counts for nothing with the Easterner.

Goes Abroad Every Time He Can Afford to Do It

He has been abroad. He is going again. The chateaux of France are more interesting to him than the cliff dwellers of New Mexico.

In a patriotic, red, white and blue way, he knows the political and agricultural possibilities of the land lying West of the Mississippi, and the war horse in him prances and paws at any hint of foreign invasion. But that there are any scenic delights out there worth his while is something beyond his two-by-four comprehension.

He has the European habit. He is infected with the going-abroad germ. He goes every time he can afford the time and money, and just as often when he can't.

He sends his wife and his daughters that they may not be socially handicapped when they meet other wives and daughters who have been "over." When he can't send them, his wife and daughters get up alluring pamphlets showing pictures of Napoleon's Tomb and the Coliseum. These they send out West, with the information that they have engaged in conducting tourists' parties at so much per.

These pamphlets announce that the woman who will take tourists under her travel wing at so much per is well versed in all the foreign languages, and is a lady of culture and refinement.

It is a rare opportunity, the pamphlets say, to see Europe with so much culture thrown in.

In some sections of the United States, notably the rural sections, the charge is made that some women become missionaries that they may get a trip abroad with expenses paid, to say nothing of the farewell teas given by the church sewing circle before they depart.

In the East, the woman who wants to go abroad adopts the role of guide, and beckons to the untraveled of the West to come with their pocketbooks, and go under her wing.

If the charge against the missionary were true, which it isn't, it can at least be said of her that she doesn't expect to take her family along.

Eastern Woman Tries to Pay for Trip with Western Money

The cultured and refined Eastern woman hopes to make enough out of the Western purse to take her entire family and the dog.

It is anything and any means to see Europe in the East. It is the Promised Land of the tourist, who sails away leaving greater scenic delights in his own country uncredited and unseen.

He has put his own land last. The fact is recorded to his humiliation and shame.

DR. ABBOTT THANKS THE AMERICAN.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

As editor of the Massachusetts Dental Society and chairman of the Journal of the Allied Societies, I want to thank you very much for your article favoring dental nurses. I can assure you that this bill is advocated by many of the most careful and conscientious and conservative operators of the State, who are doing a great deal of charity work themselves and who believe that this bill will help to solve the question of caring for the children who need dental services and who are not cared for under present arrangements.

Very respectfully,

Melrose Sets a High Standard in Civic Pride and Municipal Enterprise

Congratulations to the busy, bustling, brainy little city of Melrose. It is filled with civic pride. It is alert with enterprise. It is an exemplar of the live municipal citizenship that should characterize every town and city not only of Massachusetts but of the whole of New England.

For instance, take cognizance of this record made by Melrose in one year dating from April 1911:

Raised by popular subscription $39,000, which, with $45,000 appropriated by the city, is to be used for the erection of a Memorial Hall.

Raised $45,000 to pay the debt on and put a swimming pool in the Young Men's Christian Association building.

Raised $125,000 to build and equip a new hospital.

Raised $4,000 in one hour Thursday night towards a $5,000 organ for the First Congregational Church.

Adding this up one finds that the residents of the little city of Melrose dug down into their pockets within the past year and brought forth $213,000. Dividing that sum by 16,000 the population of Melrose—and one finds that it averages a little over $13 per capita.

Is there any other town or city in New England that can show a better record? If so, the AMERICAN would be glad to record the gratifying fact.

Money expended along the lines followed in Melrose is casting bread upon the waters. It will return to bless and comfort this and future generations in that city.

The Brady War Photographs Picture the Mighty Deeds of the Civil War

Fifty years ago this republic was rocking in the throes of a bitter conflict between the North and the South. It was the greatest, and the saddest, quarrel between the men of one nation the world has ever known.

History knows no more stirring or fascinating story of a nation's patriotism than is found in the annals of the American Civil War.

As one means, and beyond question the best yet devised, of keeping alive that story and of saving its lessons for future generations of Americans, the Boston AMERICAN is now placing before its readers an opportunity to add to their home libraries the famous Brady war pictures and their accompanying story of the mighty struggle, written by the noted historian Benson J. Lossing.

The old soldiers of the Grand Army, their families, and every patriotic man and woman in New England, are all interested in this artistic preservation of the Republic's most trying hour.

Fighting With Blunt Weapons and Honor Due the Weak

By DOROTHY DIX

I WISH that I had the distribution of a few of the Carnegie hero medals. I would pin them upon the worn and weary breasts of the men and women who are fighting the battle of life with blunt weapons.

There is heroism for you! There is courage for you, there is loyalty, there is victory wrested out of defeat, greater than any poet ever sung.

Anybody with a drop of red blood in his veins can lead a forlorn hope with the band playing in his ears, and the mob cheering behind him.

Anybody in a moment of impulse can dash into a burning house, or plunge into the water to save a life.

Anybody can be faithful to a trust in the face of a single temptation.

Anybody, with health and strength, and intelligence, and talent, and powerful friends can achieve success.

"God," said Napoleon, "is on the side of the heavy artillery."

It is easy to win the battle when you have the big army, and the heavy artillery, and all the newest munitions of war, and a well-stocked commissary.

But how great the valor of those who also win who have no big guns, no skilled leaders, who fight on empty stomachs, whose muskets are obsolete, whose swords are dull!

I would not rob the brilliant, and clever, and strong of one laurel leaf, but the lustre of their achievements dim before those of the men and women who, without talent, without health, or strength have still done their part in the world.

They are those who have fought the battle of life with dull weapons and won out.

As I write these lines I am thinking of one of these heroes. He is a little dingy, dried up old bachelor, whose abilities have never taken him higher than a clerk's stool in a counting room.

He has seen hundreds of bright young fellows pass him in the race for success, and he knows they look upon him as a failure. That is the way he regards himself.

He cannot do things swiftly. His hands are clumsy. Ideas come to him slowly. He can only work patiently, and faithfully, and honestly.

These are not the qualities that insure promotion, but they hold down a job, and on the meager wage that he has earned he supported a houseful of helpless old women who were left dependent on him. He is one of those heroes who have fought the battle wi' blunt weapons.

And I think of still another—a man, who, without education, labors at a menial occupation for weary hours every day, and then does extra work at night in order that his children may have better advantages than he had.

His shoulders are bent under the burden he carries, his hands are knotted and gnarled.

He is shabby. He never thinks of spending a cent upon his own pleasure.

He is worn with labor until his very soul faints with weariness, but he keeps his children at school instead of putting them to work to help him.

And I think of a woman who was a pretty, petted, spoiled young girl, accustomed in her youth to every comfort and luxury. While still a mere girl she married a drunken brute who abused and misused her, and finally deserted her, leaving her penniless with a six months' old babe in her arms, and two old women dependent upon her.

This woman had never done a day's work in her life. She had no trade nor profession, nor especial aptitude at anything. She was not clever, and she was frail in body, yet she went bravely and cheerfully to work at the first job that offered itself, but it has never even occurred to her to turn her back upon those who clung to her skirts, or to give up the fight.

Somehow, despite ill health, despite lack of much intelligence, she has managed to care for her own without asking any one's help. The wolf has never been more than an arm's length away from her door, but with her poor little blunt weapons she has kept it at bay.

And I think also of another woman, a little ignorant country dressmaker, so unskilled she does not even ask first-class prices. There is no magic touch in her fingers, no artistic sense of color in her taste. She can only do plain, honest, ill-paid sewing.

But for years and years she supported an invalid husband who died by inches of a lingering disease. Then when he was gone, and she had toilsomely paid the last cent of the funeral and doctor's bills, a railroad accident killed her brother and his wife and left seven little children with only her to stand between them and the orphan asylum.

She was a figure of fun, this clumsy, ignorant, homely little village dressmaker, but I never looked at her without seeing a halo of glory about her battered black bonnet, for she was one of the greatest of those heroes who have fought the battle of life with dull weapons and triumphed.

Money expended along the lines followed in Melrose is casting bread upon the waters. It will return to bless and comfort this and future generations in that city.

The Brady War Photographs Picture the Mighty Deeds of the Civil War

Fifty years ago this republic was rocking in the throes of a bitter conflict between the North and the South. It was the greatest, and the saddest, quarrel between the men of one nation the world has ever known.

History knows no more stirring or fascinating story of a nation's patriotism than is found in the annals of the American Civil War.

As one means, and beyond question the best yet devised, of keeping alive that story and of saving its lessons for future generations of Americans, the Boston AMERICAN is now placing before its readers an opportunity to add to their home libraries the famous Brady war pictures and their accompanying story of the mighty struggle, written by the noted historian Benson J. Lossing.

The old soldiers of the Grand Army, their families, and every patriotic man and woman in New England, are all interested in this artistic preservation of the Republic's most trying hour.

Fighting With Blunt Weapons and Honor Due the Weak

By DOROTHY DIX

I WISH that I had the distribution of a few of the Carnegie hero medals. I would pin them upon the worn and weary breasts of the men and women who are fighting the battle of life with blunt weapons.

There is heroism for you! There is courage for you, there is loyalty, there is victory wrested out of defeat, greater than any poet ever sung.

Anybody with a drop of red blood in his veins can lead a forlorn hope with the band playing in his ears, and the mob cheering behind him.

Anybody in a moment of impulse can dash into a burning house, or plunge into the water to save a life.

Anybody can be faithful to a trust in the face of a single temptation.

Anybody, with health and strength, and intelligence, and talent, and powerful friends can achieve success.

"God," said Napoleon, "is on the side of the heavy artillery."

It is easy to win the battle when you have the big army, and the heavy artillery, and all the newest munitions of war, and a well-stocked commissary.

But how great the valor of those who also win who have no big guns, no skilled leaders, who fight on empty stomachs, whose muskets are obsolete, whose swords are dull!

I would not rob the brilliant, and clever, and strong of one laurel leaf, but the lustre of their achievements dim before those of the men and women who, without talent, without health, or strength have still done their part in the world.

They are those who have fought the battle of life with dull weapons and won out.

As I write these lines I am thinking of one of these heroes. He is a little dingy, dried up old bachelor, whose abilities have never taken him higher than a clerk's stool in a counting room.

He has seen hundreds of bright young fellows pass him in the race for success, and he knows they look upon him as a failure. That is the way he regards himself.

He cannot do things swiftly. His hands are clumsy. Ideas come to him slowly. He can only work patiently, and faithfully, and honestly.

These are not the qualities that insure promotion, but they hold down a job, and on the meager wage that he has earned he supported a houseful of helpless old women who were left dependent on him. He is one of those heroes who have fought the battle with blunt weapons.

And I think of still another—a man, who, without education, labors at a menial occupation for weary hours every day, and then does extra work at night in order that his children may have better advantages than he had.

His shoulders are bent under the burden he carries, his hands are knotted and gnarled.

He is snabby. He never thinks of spending a cent upon his own pleasure.

He is worn with labor until his very soul faints with weariness, but he keeps his children at school instead of putting them to work to help him.

And I think of a woman who was a pretty, petted, spoiled young girl, accustomed in her youth to every comfort and luxury. While still a mere girl she married a drunken brute who abused and misused her, and finally deserted her, leaving her penniless with a six months' old babe in her arms, and two old women dependent upon her.

This woman had never done a day's work in her life. She had no trade nor profession, nor especial aptitude at anything. She was not clever, and she was frail in body, yet she went bravely and cheerfully to work at the first job that offered itself, but it has never even occurred to her to turn her back upon those who clung to her skirts, or to give up the fight.

Somehow, despite ill health, despite lack of much intelligence, she has managed to care for her own without asking any one's help. The wolf has never been more than an arm's length away from her door, but with her poor little blunt weapons she has kept it at bay.

And I think also of another woman, a little ignorant country dressmaker, so unskilled she does not even ask first-class prices. There is no magic touch in her fingers, no artistic sense of color in her taste. She can only do plain, honest, fill-paid sewing.

But for years and years she supported an invalid husband who died by inches of a lingering disease. Then when he was gone, and she had toilsomely paid the last cent of the funeral and doctor's bills, a railroad accident killed her brother and his wife and left seven little children with only her to stand between them and the orphan asylum.

She was a figure of fun, this clumsy, ignorant, homely little village dressmaker, but I never looked at her without seeing a halo of glory about her battered black bonnet, for she was one of the greatest of those heroes who have fought the battle of life with dull weapons and triumphed.
